SHORT BIO

/01

Paula Vilches is a Chilean singer-songwriter, musician, and composer based in the United States. With a background in opera, classical music, jazz, and rock, she has developed a distinctive sound that blends alternative rock, South American folk, and spiritually inspired lyrics—a style she describes as South American Spiritual Rock.

Paula studied opera and classical music before earning a Bachelor's degree in Jazz and Popular Music, an experience that shaped her eclectic musical identity.

She has performed throughout South America, the United States, and Europe, and has collaborated with musicians from diverse backgrounds, including Steve Rothery (Marillion), Damian Wilson, and Patricio Portius (Star Wars: Visions 2, OST).

As a solo artist, Paula has released four records and several music videos. Her latest music video features Chilean ice-water swimmer and four-time Guinness World Record holder Bárbara Hernández, reflecting her passion for collaborating with inspiring artists beyond the music world.

Driven by the belief that art is an expression of the soul, Paula creates music that explores hope, transformation, resilience, and the search for meaning.
